2018 Clos de Luz product-timed-pdf - Malbec Massal 1945 - Nearly 50% OFF, 92pt. Malbec!

Why We're Drinking It

Savvy Malbec drinkers will already be all over this wine, but if it's new to you, Clos de Luz's 1945 bottling (mostly Malbec with a few Cabernet vines all planted in that year) is a massive overdeliverer. Fresh, round, with terrific balance and pure, fine fruit.

WA92: "The 2018 Massal 1945 Malbec is from a cooler year that delivered fresh wines with moderate alcohol. The Malbec vines are scattered among the Cabernet Sauvignon, planted in 1945, and were picked separately, fermented in open 500-liter bins with indigenous yeasts and matured in neutral 300-liter oak barrels for 12 months. It's floral and varietal, clean and expressive, with moderate alcohol and good freshness, fine tannins and tasty, focused flavors. This is a varietal, floral and expressive Malbec. 1,200 bottles were filled in June 2019."

Only 1200 bottles? How did we end up with like ¼ of the entire production? Don't ask...just JUMP and grab it! Wow!
